

OTHERWORLDLY PATRON: THE ELDER DRAGON

Your patron is an ancient dragon, older than most ever witnessed on the Material Plane. Though few and far-between, many of these powerful beings aim to accumulate as much wealth and territory as possible, and have long since recognized that it is easier to entice weaker mortals into doing their bidding than to risk their own safety. Such immensely powerful dragons include the immortal Shou-Lao, the devious Smaug, and the greedy Fafnir.

EXPANDED SPELL LIST

The Elder Dragon lets you choose from an expanded list of spells when you learn a warlock spell. The following spells are added to the warlock spell list for you.

ELEMENTAL BREATH

Upon pledging yourself to the Elder Dragon, you are granted a small fraction of its limitless power. At 1st level, choose the origin of your patron from the Draconic Ancestry table below. You gain access to a pool of d6s equal to 1 plus your warlock level. As an action, you may expend a number of these d6s to unleash a breath weapon against your opponent. The nature of the breath weapon is based on your patron's origin, and can be found on the Draconic Ancestry table. You may spend a number of dice equal to double your proficiency bonus per action. The targets must make a saving throw against your spell save DC. The nature of the target's saving throw is also found on the Draconic Ancestry table. On a failed saving throw, they take damage based on the roll of your expended dice plus your Charisma modifier, or half as much on a success. You regain all dice expended this way when you complete a long rest, or half of your total pool (rounded up) at the end of a short rest.

LEGACY OF TERROR

Dragons of your patron's power are feared across the realms. Starting at 6th level, the range on your breath weapon increases; cones are extended to 30 ft., while lines now reach up to 90 ft. In addition, when you use your breath weapon, you can choose to have all targets hit by it make a Wisdom saving throw against your spell save DC. Targets who fail this throw are frightened of you for 1 minute. A creature may attempt this saving throw at the end of each of its turns. If a target's saving throw is successful, it is immune to this feature for 24 hours. You can use this feature a number of times equal to your Charisma modifier, and regain all expended uses after finishing a long rest.

FLIGHT OF THE BEHOLDEN

As your strength increases, so does your connection to your patron. At 10th level, you may use an action to gain a flying speed of 40 ft. as spectral dragon wings unfurl from your back. You can use these wings for a number of minutes per day equal to your Charisma modifier, and gain back all uses after a long rest. While this feature is active, you gain resistance to damage of your patron's origin, found on the Draconic Ancestry table. You may dismiss these wings at any point as a bonus action.

DRACONIC AVATAR

As a dedicated servant of your patron, you have access to secrets unbehind by all but a select few mortals. At 14th level, you are able to use a bonus action to transform into a terrifying spectral avatar of your patron. This form lasts for 10 minutes, and can only be used once per long rest. While in this form, you gain the following effects:

- You gain 98 temporary hit points. This is increased by 1d12 every time you gain a Warlock level.
- Your movement speed becomes 40 ft., and you gain a fly speed of 80 ft.

- You gain a +5 bonus to your Strength modifier and +4 bonus to your Constitution modifier while in this form. All other scores remain the same.
- You gain immunity to the type of damage associated with your patron (found in the Draconic Ancestry table).
- You gain an increased range on your Elemental Breath attacks; lines increase to 120 ft., while cones increase to 80 ft.
- You may use your reaction to make a spectral wing attack. Each creature within 15 ft. of you must succeed on a Dexterity saving throw equal to your spell save DC + 5 or take 2d6 + your Charisma modifier bludgeoning damage and be knocked prone. After making this attack, you may immediately move up to half of your fly speed.
- In place of your regular abilities, you have access to a spectral bite, claw and tail attack, as well as your Elemental Breath attack. While in this form, you are unable to use any cantrips or concentration spells.

The stat block to the right may be used to keep track of the details of this form.

BUILDING YOUR WARLOCK

Elder dragons are beings that have evolved a stage further than an ancient. Their power lies somewhere in between that of an ancient dragon and other draconic deities, like Tiamat and Bahamut. For their own reasons, they occasionally decide to bestow upon certain adventurers a modicum of their power in exchange for servitude. As a result, one bound to the service of one of these beings can expect to emulate certain traits related to dragons. Some such individuals over time grow physical features that hint this connection - be it a thin layer of scales on the skin, sharpened claw-like nails, fang-like teeth, or reptilian eyes - but not all generate these physical changes. These changes are purely aesthetic, and are not usable in combat.

Your relationship with your patron depends on the nature of the dragon itself. Evil-inclined patrons will often result in a more transactional relationship that benefits themselves, while morally just dragons will compel their subjects to act against injustice. The following table is a list of potential relationship dynamics for you to explore:

PATRON-WARLOCK RELATIONSHIP

Patron Alignment Relationship Dynamic

Neutral	Your patron demands a tithe of your gold, that through ritual you can gift to their vast hoard. Perhaps in return, you can expect some kind of reward for faithful offerings?
Neutral	Your patron seeks knowledge to aid their own ambitions. It is your job to amass as much as you can on their behalf.
Evil	To sate your patron's endless hunger, you must offer them blood sacrifices in their name - either in battle or otherwise.
Good	Your patron is a paragon of justice, and thus urges you forth to combat injustice and punish those who make innocent people suffer.
