Artificer

Requirements: Minimum DEX 9, Minimum INT 9
Prime Requisite: INT
Hit Dice: 1d6
Maximum Level: 14
Armour: Light armour, medium armour, helmets, shields
Weapons: Trigger-operated missile weapons, one-handed melee weapons
Languages: Alignment, Common

The artificer is an expert of mad sciences and engineering. As much H.G. Wells' Dr. Moreau as his Time Traveller, the artificer is a mix of wondrous and macabre. The rational and the arcane are tools to advance their understanding.

Combat

Artificers can use anything deemed "point and shoot" - such as a crossbow or firearm - as well as one-handed melee weapons.

Artificer Skills

Artificers can use the following skills, with the chance of success shown opposite:

> Find or remove treasure traps (TR):

A roll is required to find a treasure trap and then another to remove it. This may be attempted only once per trap. Requires artificers' tools (see Equipment in Vintage Gothic).

> Detect room traps (DR): Roll to detect non-magical room traps when searching. This may be attempted only once per trap (See Dungeon Adventuring in Old-School Essentials).

> Identify Illusion (II): Roll to detect illusions. A success does not mean that the artificer sees through the illusion, but they are aware that it is there. If the illusion's creator is above 5th-level, a 5% penalty is applied for each level above 5th. This may only be attempted only once per illusion.

> Identify Potion (IP): Roll to identify a potion without tasting it, requiring one hour and artificers' tools. This may be attempted once per potion per day.

> Understand Mechanics (UM): Roll to understand the designed purpose of a mechanical device. Half chance for devices with a magical component. Wholly magical devices may not be understood in this way. This may be attempted once per device per week.

Scientific Endeavours

Scientific research: An artificer of any level may spend time and money on scientific research. This allows them to develop new marvels and to research other scientific endeavours. When an artificer reaches 5th level, they are also able to create potions and non-magical masterwork items (see Masterworks in Vintage Gothic).

Such research is performed as its magical counterpart is in Magical Research (see Old-School Essentials).

Marvels

Marvels operate identically to Spells but are non-magical (see Old-School Essentials). Artificers have access to the full list of available marvels.

Artificers' tools: Required for any marvels which utilise tools, elixirs, or resources (see Equipment in Vintage Gothic).

Performing marvels: An artificer brainstorms to prepare their marvels. The power and number of marvels available to an artificer is determined by the character's experience level. The list of marvels available to artificers is found in Artificer Marvel List, p4.

Elixirs: Many marvels utilise elixirs that the artificer is happy to test on themselves. The same elixir used on someone else will make the ingester mildly queasy - receiving none of the intended benefit.

Rolling Skill Checks

All skills except detect room traps are rolled on d%, with a result of less than or equal to the listed percentage indicating success.

Detect room traps is rolled on 1d6. If the roll is within the listed range of numbers, the skill succeeds.

After Reaching 9th Level

The artificer is now able to use magical items previously limited to other classes, such as wands, staves, and rods. The artificer still may not create such items and they remain unable to use scrolls.

In addition, time and monetary cost for performing scientific research and item creation is halved. Any required materials must still be expended in their standard amount.
